

Who is that group from Johnstown, PA., that begins each performance with a story and then provides a mix of polka's, waltzes, rock and roll and a little bit country? You got it; it's none other than Rosie and The Jammers!

Although Rosie and The Jammers call Johnstown home, this talented group has performed at the Fallsview resort in the Catskill's and just this last October, performed on the Carnival Cruise Ship "Miracle". Rosie and the gang can also be found playing at Johnstown Polkafest, Cambria City Ethnic Festival, various church festivals throughout the summer. We perform at over nineteen (19) different counties.

Rosie and The Jammers have been together for 12 years, have released two CD's, "At Last" and "Celebrate", and although some of the faces have changed throughout the years, the band remains a solid presence on the local music scene. Band members are:

Rosie Sida: Rosie is the Manager of Rosie and The Jammers and plays both the keyboard and Button Box accordion. She started to play the piano accordion at the age of 12.

Brian Anater: Brian has been playing the saxophone since high school. In addition to playing the sax, Brian does some vocal selections.

Eric Furfari plays the piano accordion. Eric has been playing the accordion since the age of 8. Eric is a versatile musician and his toe tapping music add a special element to the unique sound of Rosie and The Jammers. Eric can also be found behind the microphone on a few vocal selections.

Tim Barteck: Tim is the lead vocalist and in addition to his beautiful voice, Tim also plays the trumpet. Tim has a diversified musical background and can sing everything from polka's to mellow ballads and rock and roll.

Judy Gaeta: Humor is the main menu for the band's emcee. Judy is the "show" portion of the entertainment. In addition to introducing the band and telling a few stories to get things started, Judy makes appearances as Lulu Belle, the band's main "groupie", Super Chick who leads the chicken dance and various other characters.

One thing is certain, Rosie and The Jammers have fun and so do their fans.
